

Learn to teach, train and educate effectively!

Have you ever:

- Wondered why there wasn't more inter-professional training in teaching and learning?
- Wondered if other health disciplines had more effective ways of teaching their colleagues?
- Questioned how effective your own teaching style is?
- Heard of the 'See one, Do one, Teach one' apprentice model of teaching and learning and wondered if this is really effective?
- Wondered what a formal teaching qualification could do for your ability to teach?

Chances are, as health professionals, the answer to most of these questions is yes!

The Graduate Certificate in Health Professional Education (GCHPE) will provide solutions and answers to these questions and more. The course is based on four face-to-face learning intensives.

Testimonials

"I've been able to develop teaching materials using the principles taught by the course that are assessed as coursework and that I can use in the teaching sessions I had to develop for work anyway."

"Face-to-face teaching contact is essential and motivational."

"It is extremely useful to find out what other health professionals are doing."

The course recognises the importance of developing the teaching skills of health professional educators and is designed for teaching in nursing, medicine, dietetics, paramedics, social work, psychology, pharmacy, radiography and dentistry etc. Participants gain the additional benefit of developing inter-professional networks, plus there is a focus on teaching and learning in Indigenous, rural and remote settings.

The program is inclusive, innovative and practical. We encourage your participation and welcome enquiries.

Where

The GCHPE learning intensives occur in Alice Springs and Darwin.

When

MEU9001 – Alice Springs: 7, 8 and 9 May 2010

MEU9002 – Darwin: 6, 7 and 8 August 2010

The remaining units will be available in 2011.

Cost

The total cost of the course is $8600.

Duration

Part-time study over two years.

Course articulation

Participants who complete the graduate certificate can apply for the Masters of Health Professional Education and have all units of the graduate certificate program credited towards their Masters qualification.

Further information

Dr Hung The Nguyen

Telephone: + 61 8 8946 7079

Email: hungt.nguyen@ntgpe.org

www.med.monash.edu.au/cmhse/courses/grad