

Kinship System

- Generation
- Marriage
- Avoidance
- Sister line
- Brother line
- Divide in two groups

16 Skin names
8 Family groups
2 Moiety
4 Family groups in each moiety

www.ntgpe.org

Note: All Nangala women are sisters and all Tjangala men are brothers.
Extended family groups emerge here

The Aboriginal kinship system is a national social structure of Indigenous people and gives each individual their identify and establishes their roles and responsibilities within their community. It provides ownership and direction for clan members and forms the base for all social interaction. The kin names used here are the ones used widely throughout parts of the Northern Territory.